TRAVEL WEST IN SPECIAL TRAINS

Six Hundred and Ten Immigrants Pass Through From Ellis Island.

Direct from Ellis Island, 610 immigrants, speaking every language in Christendom except English, have passed through the city in the last two days. They are en route over Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, to points in the West, where they will seek their fortunes in the big cities and on the ranches. There were men, women and children, all jabbering at once, but all optimistic and confident that they would become rich in the land of promise.

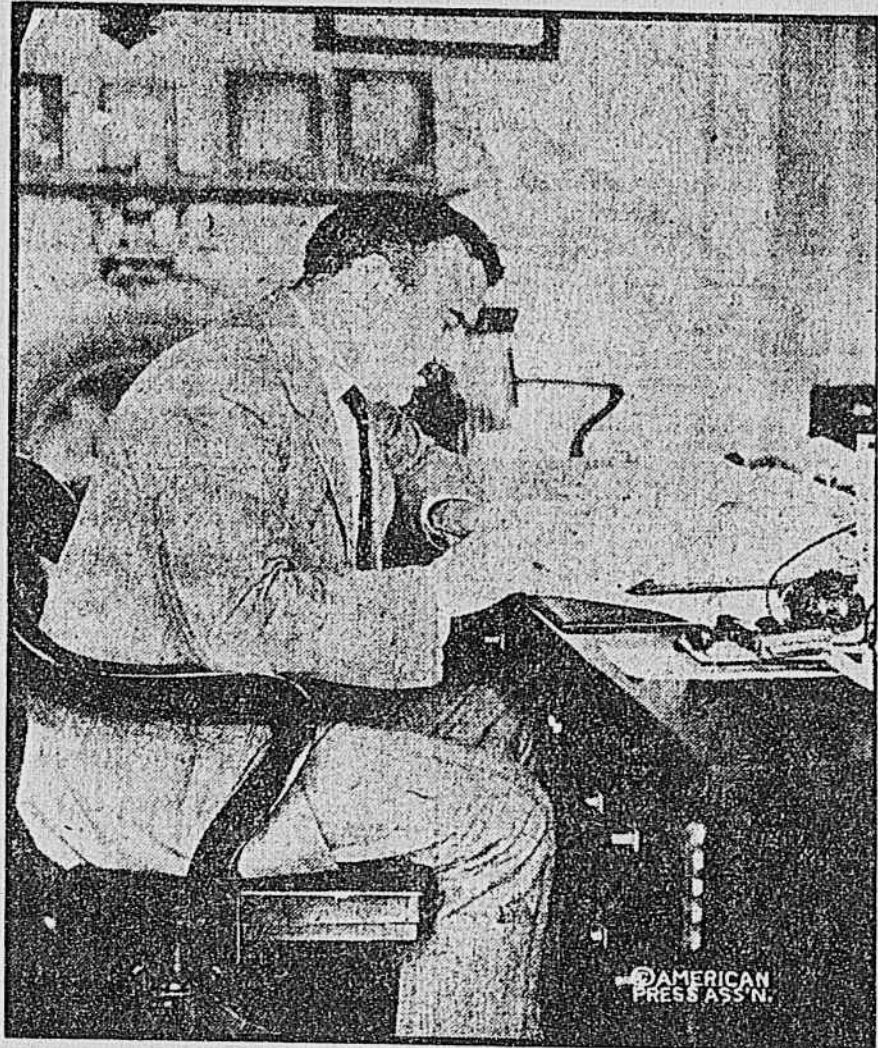

They are killed, or tagged, through to Cincinnati, which is the point of distribution. Some will remain there, while others will be sent still further West. Immigrants are traveling over the Chesapeake and Ohio every week, but these are the largest consignments in some time.

They are carried in special trains, crowded in day coaches night and day, and are rushed to their destination as fast as possible so long as regular passenger traffic is not disturbed. The first train went through Wednesday with 325 passengers, and another passed here yesterday with 285. During the entire trip they do not leave the trains for fear of being lost, and at Cincinnati are taken in charge by the immigrant distributing agents.

Fined for Assaulting Teacher.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Spotsylvania, Va., April 6.—James H. Broadbent and his wife, Winnie Broadbent, were tried yesterday in the Circuit Court here for entering a public schoolhouse in Livingston District, of this county, and assaulting the teacher and several scholars. They were fined $20 each and costs.

TREASURER M'CLUNG GUEST OF BANK MEN

LEE M'CLUNG.

Comes Here to Speak at Banquet To-Night With Congressman Vreeland and President MacMichael, of American Institute of Banking

Lee McLung, Treasurer of the United States, Congressman E. E. Vreeland, vice-chairman of the Monetary Commission, and National President R. H. MacMichael, of the American Institute of Banking, will arrive here this afternoon to speak at the annual dinner of the local chapter of the institute, which will take place in the Jefferson Hotel auditorium to-night. The visitors will be met at the train by a delegation from the Richmond chapter, which will escort them to the Jefferson.

Treasurer McLung will speak on "Some Phases of the United States Treasury Operations," and Congressman Vreeland will discuss "Bank Problems of the Day." Governor William Hodges Mann will respond to the toast "Virginia," and ex-Governor A. J. Montague will offer "A Few Words to the Boys." At the close of the meeting

President MacMichael will have something to say for the national organization. A great deal of interest has been shown in the meeting, especially on account of the fact that Mr. Vreeland is to speak. He comes direct from Washington, where he has been attending a week's session of the Monetary Commission. He is an able speaker, and will explain in detail the various features of the Aldrich plan, which now occupies the foremost place among the questions confronting the bankers to-day.

This is expected to be the most largely attended meeting of the kind ever held by the local chapter. Governors will be paid for more than 250, and at least that many are expected. In this number, besides the clerks and local officers, will be included bankers from the different sections of the State as well as from Washington and Baltimore.

Aside from the set speeches, the program, which has been arranged, is very attractive, and will contain several new and novel features. President E. C. Tallman, of the Richmond chapter, will preside, and John Garland Pollard will act as toastmaster.

Two Distinguished Men.
Washington, April 6.—There are some curious features to the Canadian reciprocity agreement. These show how many sections of the country are affected by what, on the surface, would seem unimportant matters. These matters, however, were not unimportant to the State Department negotiators who, under the instructions of the President, were looking after the interests of all parts of the country. There is, for instance, the matter of geese. On Prince Edwards Island, a good many geese are raised, but they are thin geese, and a goose that is not fat is no goose at all. Some trial shipments showed that the geese could be fattened to advantage in the United States, where they supplied the Boston and New York markets. The duty, however, was an obstacle to fattening geese on this side of the line, so the negotiators obliterated it by making poultry free, and geese are poultry. If there is any doubt on this point the Treasury Department stands ready to solve it.

When cranberries were under discussion, the first thought was that their free entry into Canada would help New Jersey and Wisconsin. That is true, but it developed that, away up in the Canadian northwest, in Alberta and Saskatchewan, the settlers had gotten an appetite for Cape Cod cranberries. The cost of freight is considerable for this long distance, and with the duty it added so much to the charge that the importations were limited.

Yet it was learned that in one season, Cape Cod sent nearly 100 carloads of cranberries to Saskatchewan. When the duty is taken off, not only Cape Cod, but Wisconsin and New Jersey will be sending very much larger quantities to the Canadian northwest. In the Pocomoke District of Maryland very fine cantaloupes are raised. There would be a very good market in Canada for these cantaloupes, but the duty is too high. The tariff rate, in fact, is the same on cantaloupes as on watermelons. The Maryland cantaloupe raisers wrote to the State Department to see if something could be done. Since they figured that one watermelon was worth about twenty cantaloupes, yet one cantaloupe had to pay as much duty as a watermelon. The reciprocity commissioners solved the problem by getting all fresh fruits made free. Then it developed that not only the Maryland cantaloupe, but cantaloupes from a number of other States had been awaiting a chance to get into the Canadian market. It was also found that, with the duty taken off, the people who raised watermelons, from Georgia way up to the boundary line, are expecting to do a big business.

They raise a great many peanuts in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. The reciprocity commissioners surprised the growers in those States by getting the duties reduced. The Canadians are fond of peanuts. Even fish is one of the strong points of the agreement. Though Gloucester does not like it, the rest of the country has taken to fresh fish very kindly indeed. The American commissioners, in making this provision, not only opened the Canadian market to American oysters, but it appears from consular reports that, as soon as the American markets are free to Canadian fish, practically the entire fishing fleet will be equipped with gasoline motors, and that manufacturers of the United States will supply these motors. The superiority of American motors over all others is brought home to the buyers by the claims of European manufacturers that their motors are "as good as Americans," but the tendency is to equip the fishing fleet with the American motors, and not take chances of rival motors being as good.

FINAL TRIBUTE TO FRIEND.

Suffolk School Children Attend Funeral of Academy Manager.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Suffolk, Va., April 6.—More than 500 pupils of the Suffolk High School this afternoon marched in a body to the Academy of Music to give a final tribute to the memory of George Washington Harris, the lover of children. The funeral service was conducted from the stage of the playhouse, which he had managed. Public schools closed earlier in order to allow the children to attend. Harris frequently had given matinees, and devoted the entire receipts to school libraries and other juvenile enterprises.

The Times-Dispatch Asks: SHOULD WOMAN PROPOSE?

Yes!

By Sophie Irene Loeb

No!

By Harold Bolce

Miss Sophie Irene Loeb, one of the most brilliantly thoughtful human interest newspaper and magazine writers in this country, will present cogent, seemingly unanswerable arguments why women should be permitted by custom to propose. Mr. Bolce takes the other side. Mr. Bolce is a magazine writer and traveler. He said when the article on proposing was submitted to him for reply that it was the strongest presentation he could imagine on the subject. But he has answered it. Read these two papers in the Greensboro, N. C., April 6.—Moses Speaks, who on February 18 murdered his wife and son-in-law at High Point, was placed on trial here to-day. He is charged with murder in two instances. A jury was selected from a special venire of seventy-five men late this afternoon. Speaks's attorneys entered a plea of not guilty, and also of insanity.

When assigned Tuesday Speaks requested Judge Daniels to have an order made so that he could be given a trial in Buffalo, N. Y., the prisoner dramatically declaring that he could never get justice in a Southern court. Since being placed in jail here Speaks has committed a number of acts that would tend to give hope through a plea of insanity.

AGED FARMER ENDS HIS LIFE.

Hangs Himself With Rope in Barn on His Premises.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Charlotteville, Va., April 6.—James Grooms, an aged farmer of near Batesville, this county, hanged himself at an early hour this morning in the barn on his farm. He arose before day, and as he did not return to the house at time for breakfast, his wife started out to look for him. She found the almost lifeless body of her husband suspended from a rope in the stable. She severed the rope with a knife, but Grooms, after giving one or two gasps, expired. Grooms, who was about sixty years old, came to Albemarle from Louisiana county, and for years held a position at the Miller Manual Labor School, near Crozet. He gave up this job to engage in farming, and had met with much success. Lately he had been a great sufferer from some chronic complaint, and his rash act is attributed to this cause. He is survived by his wife.
